Think of your story as a little person - the introduction is the head, the middle is the body, and the ending is the legs and feet. All are needed to be complete.

Give reasons and details to show how the person you chose is so special!

Try ending by reminding us why your opinion about your helper/hero is right!

Show what you like about your person to help your story shine, in crayons, markers, anything! There are no wrong choices, so have fun!
